Artificial Intelligence in the Workplace What Employers Need to Know

AI in the workplace is here to stay. Yet, many employers use AI without understanding the potential risks and liabilities. Join us as we address key AI-related risks, and strategies to manage them.

1. Recruitment and Human Resources

- Risks associated with:
 - Bias and human rights (direct and indirect)
 - Using AI to draft employment contracts, policies, etc.
 - Using AI to inform HR-related decisions
- Disclosure/transparency obligations
- Employer liability when using third-party software

2. Privacy

- Dos and don'ts of using AI to monitor productivity, performance, and remote work
- Existing laws and what's coming down the pipe across Canada

3. Privilege and Confidentiality

- Inadvertent loss of legal privilege
- Nothing is “automatically” confidential in the world of AI

4. AI Use Policy

- Why have one?
- What should a policy include?

5. Collective Agreement Considerations

- Potential impact on provisions regarding technological change, contracting out, etc.
